

Mission Statement

"Our aim is to provide an affordable and extensive range of recycled and natural materials, collected from industry and the community to promote creative and imaginative play and happenings in the community for children, their families and related services."

Creative play makes happy children!

What is Creative Junk?

Creative junk is a not-for-profit community centre. We have a voluntary management committee employing people to run the centre with help from volunteers.

We collect and accept a wide range of cheap and reusable materials to use for creative and imaginative happenings in the community.

Materials are used by children of all ages in early childhood education centres, schools, recreational groups and the community.

Art materials and other equipment are for sale at wholesale prices.

Workshops are held to promote recycle, reuse, rethink and develop and strengthen education profile on and off site.

We have play equipment and prop for hire to members:

Parachute, tunnel, musical instruments, body-sox, infant toddler steps, clear boards, and more!

Creative ideas are on display for inspiration. We are always looking for fun and useful junk

Don't throw it away.

Save it for creative and imaginative play!

How can you help Creative Junk?

In order to operate successfully we rely on you and the community to supply us with "junk". If you have access to waste materials you think may be of use, let us know!

What can we use?
